

Munition Investigators Fear Dupont Strategy Might Stymie Probe

WASHINGTON—The Senate Munitions Committee, resuming its investigation today, has a much harder job on its hands than before.

Some members of the Committee are worried lest the gesture of the duPonts has spiked the show.

Senate investigations cost money. And the Committee's strategy was to build up enough public sentiment to secure further funds. This was done in a big way. But the duPonts went to the committee one better. They proposed Government regulation of munitions manufacture and export.

Now, the industry can claim that since the purpose of the investigation was to secure regulation of war weapons, there is no use proceeding further. Why ruthlessly kill American trade in South America, the industry can argue.

Undoubtedly this argument will be effective with some Senate leaders.

But meanwhile public opinion continues strong for the investigation. The Committee's total mail ran into hundreds of thousands. Even today, more than two months after the first committee session, letters continue to pour in at the rate of 150 to 200 daily.

White Housekeeper

Note to housewives:
If you think you have a hard time getting the head of the family to replace the household china when it breaks up, consider the sad lot of Mrs. Henrietta Nesbit, housekeeper at the White House.

When a White House plate gets too chipped to use, she has to put it aside and send it, with an official report, to the Assistant Director of Public Buildings.

He looks it over, decides whether it should be permanently "condemned." If his verdict is "aye," he makes out official papers, orders, etc., by which the plate is finally destroyed by being broken up.

If a plate is actually broken, the pieces are sent and the same procedure obtains. The housekeeper has to replace for every bit of crockery, glass, and other household furnishings in the executive mansion.

Short and Snappy

Capitol Hill is buzzing with the inside tip that the President has his mind set on a short and snappy Congressional session.

Roosevelt apparently wants Congress to wind up by May 1, at the latest, and to that end is quietly trimming his "must" legislative program to include only the following:

- Appropriation measures.
- New NRA bill, necessary because the present Act expires in 1935.
- Unemployment insurance.
- Public Works bill.
- St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty.
- Taxation, banking, holding corporations, pure food and drug, and numerous other reform measures would all be shelved if he has his way.

That the President would like to get Congress off his hands as soon as possible.

POST'S PLANE CLIMBING HIGH AFTER RECORD

Winnie Mae Leaves Oklahoma Airport Trying to Break Italian's Mark

USES FAMED PLANE

Flyer Wearing Steel "strato-jacket"

PHILLIPS AIRPORT, Bartlesville, Okla., Dec. 3.—The globe circling airplane Winnie Mae with its famous round the world pilot Wiley Post at the controls roared down the runways here at 8:09 a. m. and off into space in an attempt to ascend 50,000 feet into the stratosphere.

A crowd of less than 300 persons braved a clear cold day to witness the takeoff of the white stream-lined cabin ship which hurtled Post into aviation's hall of fame when he skimmed the craft around the earth in the record time of 7 days, 18 hours and 56 minutes.

AFTER RECORD

The flight into the upper regions, which had been delayed by bad weather, is an official attempt to break the record of 47,352 feet established by Lieut. Renato Donati of Italy.

"This is not a stunt flight," Post insisted before the takeoff. "It is an official attempt to break the record and also to prove that a stock model plane can fly in the stratosphere."

The plane has a gasoline capacity sufficient for a three and a half hours flight, but Post said he did not expect to remain up longer than two hours.

A barograph in the ship will make an official recording of the plane's climb and will be turned over to the department of commerce for checking to ascertain whether a new record was established.

The plane and pilot are specially equipped to withstand the rarified air of the stratosphere.

WEARS JACKET

Post wore a special inflated "strato-jacket" of steel and rubber with a hose attached to the hood through which the pilot will breathe oxygen.

A "super-charger" will cause the rarified air to have the same action on the motor as air at lower altitudes.

MRS. MINNIE LUTZ IS TAKEN AT 59

Mrs. Minnie Mae Lutz, 59, widow of John L. Lutz and a resident of the Kingston vicinity the greater part of her life, passed away Sunday at 2:15 a. m. in Lancaster hospital where she underwent an operation Saturday.

Mrs. Lutz had been living in Amanda.

She is survived by a son, Denver and two daughters, Mrs. Lutz Miller and Mrs. Edna Damm, seven grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. W. S. Jones of Griffin, Ga.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the Amanda M. E. church with Revs. Shaver and Donnelly in charge and burial in Whistler cemetery by H. E. Deffenbaugh and Sons.

Alleged Slayer, Student Victim

Phillip Kennamer

John Gorrell

Phillip Kennamer, left, of Tulsa, Okla., 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, has been arrested by police on a charge of murder. County Attorney Holly Anderson declared the youth confessed, "I had to do it," after allegedly killing John Gorrell, 23, a dental student, son of a widely known Tulsa physician. Kennamer was arrested after Floyd J. Huff, Kansas City, Mo., pilot informed police that Kennamer had assertedly declared he was going to kill Gorrell.

WILLIAM LIST TAKEN SUNDAY

Washington-Twp Farmer Passes Away in Columbus; Rites Wednesday.

William H. List, 65, widely known Washington-Twp farmer, died Sunday at 10 a. m. in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, of complications after an illness of three weeks.

He was a lifelong resident of Pickaway-co.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 9 a. m. at St. Joseph's church with Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman officiating. Interment will be in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery by the W. H. Albaugh-Co. Pall bearers will be T. O. Gilliland, Clayton Leist, Jerome Warner, P. J. Conner, J. C. Rader and John Moore.

Mr. List was born Sept. 30, 1869 a son of John P. and Sophia Clouse List. He married Catherine Conner in this city April 27, 1892.

The widow survives with the following children, Bernard of Rt. 5, Loring of this city, Conner of Ross-co, and William and Raymond List and Mrs. Harmon Rhyne of Columbus. Five brothers and two sisters, James, Adam, George, John and Charles, all of this county, and Mrs. Ann Fulford of Williamsport and Mrs. Mary Klein of Terre Haute, Ind., also survive.

He was a member of St. Joseph's church.

COATE BABY WINS DECEMBER PRIZE

Son Born at Berger Hospital at 11:25 P. M. Sunday Is First of Month.

A seven pound ten ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Coate, W. Union-st., won a race with a baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ankrum, 137 York-st., and today was crowned Circleville's first baby of the month of December.

The Coate baby was born at Berger hospital at 11:25 p. m. Sunday and the Ankrum child came about nine hours later at 8:10 a. m. Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Coate have two other children, David and Sarah Jane.

A number of prizes for the first baby of the month will go to the Coate family.

The prizes and the merchants awarding them follow:

One quart of milk daily for two weeks by the Circle City dairy; $1 in a savings account by the Circleville Savings and Banking Co.; a case of Coca Cola by the Coca Cola Bottling works; a Johnson baby set by the Miller pharmacy; a Chenille rug by Griffith & Martin; a three months' subscription to The Herald; a box of cigars by the Mecca restaurant; a floral tribute by Brehmer's greenhouse; 400 pounds of ice to be used in December by the Circleville Ice Co.; $1 credit on a ton of coal by S. C. Grant, and $1 credit on a heating pad by the Southern Ohio Electric Co.

PARTITION ORDERED

A writ of partition has been filed in common pleas court signed by Judge J. W. Adkins in the case of Roy McCafferty against Alton McCafferty and others. Land totalling 42.69 acres in Monroe-twp is involved.

CLARK MAKES FINE MEMORIAL ADDRESS

Fred C. Clark, funeral director, made a splendid address Sunday at annual Memorial services of B. P. O. Elks lodge No. 77. Deceased members of the organization were eulogized.

Music was furnished by the Albaugh quartet with the regular lodge officers filling the chairs.

POLICE, FIREMEN RECEIVE SALARIES

Police and firemen were paid up to date Saturday, when Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, obtained an advance of $2,500 on the city's share of the December tax distribution which is expected to be made this week.

Pay of the police and firemen was delayed two weeks.

FIREMEN AT WORK ON TOY REPAIRS

Firemen have embarked on a real campaign to bring joy into the hearts of many of Circleville's children at Christmas time. They are repairing toys for distribution and already have received a large number from Charles Will, Bobby Greisheimer, Howard Moore Jr., Jimmy Carpenter, and Howard Orr Jr.

The toys these boys deposited at the engine house are nice ones the firemen report and many more such contributions will be greatly appreciated.

You older folks who do not have toys but have a little spare change in your pockets might help the cause by buying some wood glue, sand paper of different grades, tape, and tacks, and, of course, paint is needed. If you don't want to buy it yourself give it to one of the firemen; he will know what supplies are worst needed.

Every child in Circleville can be assured of a nice Christmas if many who are able will contribute, and those children who have toys not being used any more will donate them.

BROTHER'S MACHINE COSTS AUTO DRIVER 2 FINES AND COSTS

Sanford Lee of Columbus was giving his brother "heck" today after he (Sanford) was arrested for two violations of motor vehicle laws.

Picked up by highway patrolmen he was charged in Squire H. O. Eveland's court with driving an automobile carrying "Christmas tree" headlights, one red and one green. That charge cost him $10 and costs. While his hearing was being conducted the patrolmen checked on the license plates and found they were fictitious; that cost him $25 and costs.

Lee told Eveland he didn't know the headlights were two-colored and thought his brother's license plates were all right since he was driving his kin's machine.

Miss Alice Ada May made a splendid address in the high school chapel period Monday morning on "Japan and Naval Limitation." She explained the 5-5-3 ratio plan for capital ships between the United States, Great Britain and Japan. Her talk was well received by the students.

2 FINED FOR VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS

Reigel and Leonard Each Taxed $500. Given 30 Days in Jail by Adkins

STATE MEN IN RAIDS

Other News of Police Court Activities

Two Pickaway-co men faced terms in the county jail today after they entered pleas of guilty Saturday afternoon before Judge Joseph W. Adkins on liquor charges filed by state agents. They were Orren Reigel, 52, of Ashville and Charles Leonard, 40, of Scioto-twp, one mile west of South Bloomfield.

They were arrested following raids by the state men and Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer. Three gallons of illegal whiskey were found at Leonard's while three-quarters of a gallon was confiscated at Reigel's.

Charges of possession and selling were placed against both men and fines of $250 and costs on each of the two charges were assessed against both. Judge Adkins also sentenced both men to the county jail for 30 days.

Reigel provided bond of $1,000 signed by Roy Wallis, this city, to appear Wednesday with the money to pay his fine. If he appears in court without the money he will have to serve it in jail in addition to the 30 days which must be served regardless of whether he pays the fine. Leonard went to jail immediately unable to pay his fine.

Reigel was represented by E. L. Crist while Leonard had no attorney.

YOUTH PAROLED

Joseph Reichelderfer, of South Bloomfield, was placed on a two year parole by Judge Adkins Saturday after he pleaded guilty to two counts of forgery.

COON EXONERATED

John Coon of this city was released by police Saturday after he had been held for investigation. Coon was given a clean slate by police.

TWO DRUNKS HAILED

Clifford Downing will appear before Mayor W. B. Cady Monday evening to answer to charges of intoxication. Floyd Davis was fined $10 and costs by the mayor for intoxication and disorderly conduct.

E. L. DALEY RESTING IN CITY HOSPITAL

Taken To Berger Sunday Afternoon; Other Hospital News.

E. L. Daley, superintendent of Circleville schools, was taken to Berger hospital Sunday afternoon for observation and treatment and was reported Monday to be "resting well and feeling better."

Mr. Daley is under the care of Dr. E. S. Shane.

Mrs. Catherine Tedrow of McArthur underwent an eye operation at Berger hospital Monday performed by Dr. C. G. Stewart.

Mrs. Hulise Hays who slipped on the steps at her home Nov. 22 and fell suffering a fractured ankle was removed from Berger hospital to her home on N. Court-st. Sunday afternoon in the Albaugh invalid car.

Harry Dick Denman, Jr., was returned home Sunday afternoon from White Cross hospital where he has been undergoing treatment for the past week. He was removed in the Albaugh invalid car.

Rehearsals Start

For Show Planned By Royal Neighbors

Rehearsals were to start this evening for the musical comedy "Crashing Thru" sponsored by the Royal Neighbors at the Grand Theatre Dec. 12 and 13.

Miss Ann Wilson of the National Producing Co., Kansas City, has been in the city several days selecting a cast and preparing for rehearsals. All practices are being held in the Modern Woodman hall.

GIRL ASLEEP FOR 33 MONTHS GAINING

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Joy reigned in the home Chicago's sleeping beauty today.

For pretty 29-year-old Patricia Maguire is slowly awakening from her two-year sleep. Each day she is arousing a bit more from the sleeping sickness which has held her in a deep coma since Feb. 24, 1932.

The elation of her mother, Mrs. Peter Milley, is unbounded today because Patricia raised her head unaided, a movement said by physicians to be extremely difficult for victims of her illness.

EX-GOVERNOR RESTING WELL

Myers Y. Cooper Has Fractured Vertebra; To Remain in Hospital Long Time.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—The condition of former Governor Myers Y. Cooper, who was seriously injured when an automobile in which he was riding left the road four miles west of Utica in Licking-co and rolled over three times in a ditch was reported as "improved and fairly good" by White Cross hospital officials today.

Three other members of the Cooper family also were hurt but only his sister, Mrs. Angie Bowlers, 73, remained in the hospital. Her condition was reported as only "fair." Another sister, Mrs. Ella Jenkins, 65, and a brother, James G. Cooper, 68, had escaped with less serious injuries.

The Coopers were enroute to Centerville in Knox-co to attend the funeral of a cousin, Mrs. Lizzie Bishop, when their car left the road. They were pinned in it for 15 minutes before passing motorists noticed the overturned car released them.

According to James Cooper, the party left their Hyde Park, Cincinnati, home early yesterday and the ex-governor drove as far as Columbus when James took the wheel. Driving on the Johnstown Road, the former governor's brother failed to notice a curve and the car left the road and rolled over three times.

Youthful 'Phenom' Located at College

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—One of the most remarkable young minds in the world, possessed by a child of six, has been found by the College of the City of New York.

He is known only as "K" because college authorities fear his career might be wrecked should his identity become known.

The lad first aroused interest when he began talking fluently at a year and a half.

When he was 20 months old he knew his alphabet by heart.

He used such words as "encyclopedia," "Evolution," and "luminosity" at six.

His intelligence "quotient" now is 196.

And that, according to Professor Samuel H. Heckman, of the college's educational clinic, is attained by "one child in a million."

John Hamilton was believed "Baby Face's" aide in the Barrington gun battle.

Slain Red Official

One of Soviet Russia's leading officials, Sergei Mironovich Kirov, above, 48-year-old member of the Communist party's political bureau, was assassinated in Leningrad. Police captured the killer who had seemingly passed unhindered into the well-guarded building where the bureau has its headquarters. A revolution on a very most of his life, Kirov, had been frequently mentioned as a possible successor to Joseph Stalin, dictator of the U. S. S. R.

FREIGHT HITS RUTTER AUTO

Mrs. Rutter Suffers Fractured Skull and Other Injuries Saturday Evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rutter, 54, wife of Mose Rutter of E. Town-st., was a patient in Berger hospital Monday suffering from a fractured skull, badly lacerated scalp and left knee and a possibly sprained back as a result of a collision between the automobile driven by her husband and a switching Pennsylvania freight train Saturday at 6:30 p. m.

Mr. Rutter was not badly hurt. His wife, however, remains serious. Her physician is Dr. E. R. Austin.

The Rutters were crossing the Pennsylvania tracks at Washington-st. when struck. The train of four cars was being backed from the new tracks near the Eshelman Milling Co.

Mrs. Rutter was taken to Berger hospital in the Albaugh ambulance.

The train No. ZB-14 was operated by Engineer Shipley and Conductor Barneat both of Lancaster.

Two other persons suffering fractured skulls are patients in the hospital. They are William Whitehead and Clarence Logsdon.

CYNTHIA BAER, 60, DIES IN COLUMBUS

Miss Cynthia Baer, aged 60, daughter of the late Mark Baer who was chief of the Circleville fire department for many years, succumbed to a heart attack Saturday at 9 p. m. at her home, 35 Guildford-st., Columbus, where she had resided for two years with her sister, Mrs. Cora Gregg.

Miss Baer was a native of Jackson-twp.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Mader & Ebert chapel with Rev. H. A. Sayre officiating. The body has been removed to the Mader & Ebert chapel where friends may call.

Miss Baer was the daughter of James Marquis Baer and Rosa Buckler. She is survived by a brother, Walter Baer of Columbus and the sister with whom she made her home.

She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Judge Adkins Among Barristers Hearing Testimony for Control Plan

COURTROOM FILLED

Judge Duncan of Franklin-co Presiding

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—With sponsors of the proposed $36,000,000 project predicting approval, a court of 17 common pleas judges met here today to hear arguments on behalf of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy association for a system of 39 dams in the Scioto and Sandusky river valleys in Ohio.

Judges from every one of the 17 counties affected were present as the hearing opened in a packed courtroom. Judge Robert P. Duncan, of Franklin-co, presided and the other 16 judges were grouped about two large tables.

Among the latter were Judges Joseph W. Adkins, of Pickaway-co, H. W. Jewell of Delaware-co, Wilbur McKenzie of Ross-co, J. T. Bell of Madison-co, Phil Welland of Morrow-co, C. A. Ahl of Crawford-co, H. S. Young of Marion-co, Ralph Sugrue of Seneca-co, Russell H. Kear of Wyandot-co, and A. V. Bauman of Sandusky-co.

OTHER OFFICIALS, TOO

Many county prosecutors and solicitors from cities in the area were also present.

"I believe the district will be approved," H. Albert Smith, president of the conservancy association, declared as he entered the courtroom. David H. Warner, secretary of the Ohio Water conservancy board, also said he anticipated approval.

Sanction of the plan by the court would officially create the conservancy district and allow it to go ahead with plans to solicit financial support from the government, the state and local subdivisions.

Approximately 4,000 land-owners in the affected area, the court will be told by Smith, he said, have signed petitions asking approval of the gigantic work. Modeled after the Muskingum valley conservancy district, it will create work for 8,000 persons for four years once it actually starts. However, beginning of construction may not start for months or one or two years, it was said.

CONNECT STREAMS

One phase of the project would connect streams that flow into the Lake Erie and the Ohio river. However, the canal would not be navigable and could not be used for shipping.

Allen L. Pretzman, attorney for the conservancy district, was the first witness before the court. He reviewed the conservancy district law in Ohio and cited the work done under it in the Miami and Muskingum valleys.

Al P. Zinn, attorney for the Muskingum conservancy district, also was present at the hearing and was expected to tell the court how the Muskingum plans had worked out satisfactorily.

Delegations from several cities made pleas for the district citing examples of much damage caused by flood waters because of no control. Portsmouth was making its plea as the noon recess was called.

Pretzman told the court that if sanction is voted the matter could be carried to Washington for inclusion in the January budget.

PLANT PICKETED

BUCYRUS, Dec. 3.—A flying-squad of 100 union pickets from Cleveland today besieged the local plant of the Kayne manufacturing company here in an attempt to spread their strike from the Cleveland plant to the Bucyrus factory of the firm.

Local police said they were unable to handle the situation as the city has only four patrolmen on the day shift.

The pickets, shouting and screaming and in what Police Chief Philip Trautman said was an "ugly mood," surrounded the local plant in an attempt to keep the workers from reporting for duty this morning.

EDWARDS SENTENCED

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 3.—Robert Allan Edwards, 21-year-old mine surveyor, today was formally sentenced to die in the electric chair for the "American Tragedy" slaying of Freda McKechnie, 26, his neighborhood sweetheart.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

HOW ABOUT LEAGUE?
How about an independent basketball league in the city with games to be played at the Circleville Athletic Club? Nearly every day someone asks if there is going to be a league and our answer frankly is "Don't know."

SOMEONE STEPS UP
Since the high school is to play its home games in the C. A. C. gym it is believed the club officials would permit a league to be contested there also if the proper persons are in charge of its organization and conduct. The club officials, and we're with them on that question, would not and should not lease the big building to irresponsible persons. It is understood a number of teams could be obtained with backers ready to go into the league but someone had better step forward soon to organize the loop or it will be too late.

MYERS ON ALL-STAR
One Columbus Red Bird athlete, if you are interested in baseball at this time of the year, made the Sporting News' all-Association team. That is Billy Myers, short stop. The other positions went: Pitchers, Tauscher of Minneapolis and Braxton of Milwaukee who won 41 games between them; catcher, Hargrave of Minneapolis; outfield, Washington of Indianapolis, Wright of Minneapolis and Almada of Kansas City; first base, Davis of Toledo; second base, Storti of Milwaukee; third base, Bedore of Indianapolis.

WHAT OF MORGAN?
Since the sale of First Baseman Captain Mickey Heath by the Red Birds it is possible Eddie Morgan, former Cleveland-Boston first baseman, will be in the Bird harness—Morgan has been sold by Boston to Rochester and that may be just a stop on the way to Columbus. We doubt, however, if Morgan comes because he detests minor league baseball except in his home town of New Orleans.

FOUR CONSIDERED FOR SOUTHERN TILT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 3.—The football teams which will meet in the "Sugar Bowl" game here New Year's day, will be announced tonight.
It was assumed at least one of the teams to be invited to compete had already been chosen, and the committee was awaiting an answer to their invitation.
It was learned Tulane and Rice are the only southern teams being considered, while the eastern opponent will be chosen from Columbia, Colgate, Temple and Pittsburgh.

OHIO SCHOOLS AT WORK FOR CAGE SEASON

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—As the regularly scheduled football games for 1934 passed into the limbo of record books, hundreds of college athletes and more than 20,000 high school youths turned their attention to serious basketball practice today.

Ohio State University's regular cagers, augmented by recruits from the football squad, held their first practice Saturday and this week will go into daily sessions under the direction of Coach Harold Olsen.
Among other schools whose athletes turned from the gridiron to the gymnasium was Hiram College, handicapped this year by the lack of a place to practice as the result of a fire which razed the school's combination gym and administration building. Hiram cagers will practice and play in high school gyms, holding most of their games at Warren.

NUMBER INCREASES
In contrast to the 423 high school football teams in the state, approximately 1,100 basketball teams were registered in the offices of H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association.

Hundreds of schools, unable to support football squads, have already taken up basketball, with schedules calling for 25 games, began playing as early as September. Larger schools, playing 10 and 12-game schedules, will start their games this month.
All basketball teams, according to an athletic association ruling, must disband cage teams on March 21, when the state tournament, will get under way. Until that time, however, approximately 1,000 basketball games will be played every week throughout the state.

BEARS READY FOR NEW YORK

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The Bears were preparing to leave for New York today to meet Kenny Strong's Giants for the world's professional football championship after turning back the Detroit Lions the second time in a week, Sunday. The score was 10-7 with big Jack Manders' toe again doing the necessary damage.
Nearly 35,000 fans saw the hotly contested game.
The Bears confined their scoring to the first half when Nagurski scored, Manders booted the placement and later contributed a field goal. The Detroit scoring was done by Glenn Presnell, Nebraska star, who sprinted 33 yards for the goal line on a fake pass play then converted by placement.
Thanksgiving day the Bears defeated Detroit 19-16 in the most thrilling fray of the year.

GIANTS BEATEN
The Giants using all their subs in an effort to prevent injury to their stars were defeated 6-0 by the hapless Philadelphia Eagles. Jim Leonard formerly of Notre Dame was the Philadelphia star.
Other pro league scores were Green Bay, 21; St. Louis, 14; Boston, 13; Brooklyn, 3.
The final game on the schedule is that next Sunday when the Bears and Giants tangle at the Polo ground.

WALSH NAMES WENDT ON HIS ALL-AMERICAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Merle Wendt, Ohio State sophomore end, was selected for a first team berth on the All-America football team announced today by Davis J. Walsh, sports editor of International News Service.
Wendt was selected over Larson of Minnesota and Moser of Stanford with Huston of Alabama the other choice for the first string.
Regis Monahan, Ohio State captain and guard, was placed at a tackle berth on the second team.
Ohio players receiving honorable mention were Hamrick at tackle, Jones at center, and Heekin at halfback.

GUARDS FROM PITT
The remainder of the INS editor's first team includes: Tackles, Reynolds of Stanford and Wideth of Minnesota; guards, Hartwig and Ormiston of Pitt; center, Leste of Texas Christian; quarterback, Williams of California; halfbacks, Howell of Alabama and Lund of Minnesota, and fullback, Grayson of Stanford.

The second team in addition to Monahan includes: Ends, Moser of Stanford and Larson of Minnesota; tackle, Rukas of Louisiana State; guards, Bevan of Minnesota and Barclay of North Carolina; center, Patterson of Chicago; quarterback, Hillard of Texas; halfbacks, Berwanger of Chicago and Purvis of Purdue, and fullback, Weinstein of Pitt.

Walsh explained that he picked Wendt over Larson because "Larson, while considered a great defensive end, was a shade weak on passes."
Geographically, the east placed two, Midwest three, southwest one, coast three and south two.

COUNTY TO OPEN

Pickaway-co teams, will open their regular scheduled this week. The list of the week's games will be announced Tuesday.

HOW to DANCE

"The Continental"

In 8 Easy Lessons

The Second Movement

SATURDAY we completed the FIRST MOVEMENT of that new ballroom sensation, "THE CONTINENTAL," which makes available for the first time to the general public, the joy of doing interpretive dancing.

Yesterday's movement, or introduction, launched the story of courtship as worked out in the new dance demonstrated by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee."

This SECOND MOVEMENT, to Fox Trot or 4-4 time, as in the whole dance, is accomplished in six bars of the music, or twenty-four counts. The movement provides a choice for the couple, who can either do a regular whirl to Fox Trot rhythm, as in the above photo; or, do a regular Fox Trot walk, four counts backward, four counts forward again and four counts back.

In this movement of "THE CONTINENTAL," the girl is supposed to gaze at her partner throughout every other bar of the music, as though studying his possibilities as a prospective suitor. In the other three bars she hides her face against his shoulder, as if pondering the information she has gained.

(Tomorrow—The Third Movement)

"THE GAY DIVORCEE" COMING TO THE CLIFTONA THEATRE, SUN, MON, TUES, DEC. 9, 10, 11.

This Neckwear will Dress Up Any Frock

PATTERN 5231

This year, the crocheter is the fortunate person for her Christmas list can be solved so satisfactorily. With everyone longing to wear some sort of crocheted accessories, a gift of this handiwork will meet with loud approval. Any of this neckwear would delight the woman who aims to be well-dressed. The pointed collar is enhanced with metal threads drawn through after the chochet is done—of course, you can use a color in place of this if you wish. The bow—it's very perky and lacy—will give an alluring touch to a simple frock. It, too, can have a bit of metallic thread or color. The tab collar—the tab is real lacy while the rest is done in a more solid crochet—is soft and lovely in angora. With these three pieces of neckwear, you can have three distinctly different gifts that will delight any feminine heart. And if you're not set on making them as gifts, smarten your own frocks with them—you'll be surprised at what they will do to them!

In pattern 5231 you will find detailed illustrations for making the neckwear shown; material requirements; illustrations of the neckwear and of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

Unique Vicks Formula Is Now Aiding Millions In Preventing Many Colds

Vicks Va-tro-nol, the unique aid in preventing colds, is now helping millions of adults and children to enjoy greater freedom from colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for nose and throat, where most colds start. Va-tro-nol should be used at that first sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril. Its timely use helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off colds in the early stages.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh)—Va-tro-nol penetrates deep into the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Va-tro-nol is powerful yet absolutely safe—for both children and adults. It has been clinically tested by physicians—and proved in everyday home use by millions.

(Note: The remarkable success of Vicks Drops—for nose and throat—has brought scores of imitations. The trademark Va-tro-nol is your protection in getting this exclusive Vicks formula. Always ask for Vicks Va-tro-nol. Now in two generous sizes—30c and 50c.)

Va-tro-nol and its companion product, Vicks VapoRub (the modern external treatment for colds) form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—fully explained in each Vicks package.

PATTERN 9208

This is a particularly nicely tailored edition of the Swing-Back design—a design, which, as you probably know, has taken the fashion world by storm this season, because of its chic versatility. Wear the over-blouse swinging jauntily free at the back—or belt it all the way round to make a classic and smart two-piece outfit. Don't you like those gracefully full sleeves ending as they do, in trim, turned-back cuffs? And the slit pockets beneath the belt are smart and swagger. The slenderizing front panel of the skirt breaks into two inverted pleats below the knee to give plenty of walking freedom for brisk winter jaunts. Stunning in silk or wool!

Pattern 9208 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards 54 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Do not miss our WINTER PATTERN BOOK of smart, easy-to-make clothes designed by our style authority, MARIAN MARTIN. Styles for every age and all occasions. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

SHOULD BEGIN NOW

E present is an appropriate time to bring up the vital subject of Christmas shopping, a pleasant responsibility which must be fulfilled within the next three weeks if all is to go happily when the day finally arrives.

There is unlimited experience to prove that early Christmas shopping is the course of wisdom. It is attended by practical benefits, as stocks that have not been reduced by the onslaughts of the day of shoppers that appears later in the season. In addition, surely, discriminating purchasing is possible and when the necessary tasks have been accomplished early the approach of the holiday may be anticipated with a mind free from the anxieties that invariably attend delayed shopping.

Circleville's stores are now prepared for invasion. They offer all of the advantages to be found in metropolitan centers, with the additional attractions of convenience and economy. There is no sound reason for going elsewhere.

A nationwide survey conducted recently by the National Retail Drygoods Association indicated that there is in prospect the largest Christmas trade since 1931, with sales showing an increase of 11 per cent over 1933 and 21.5 per cent over 1932.

If this expectation is realized an important step toward economic recovery will be accomplished. Circleville shoppers will serve their own interests by giving their share of stimulus to the forward movement.

JAP MENACE GROWS

THERE is a definite element of consistency in the decision of Japan to denounce the Washington treaty establishing principle of naval limitation. Japan is absolutely committed to a policy of national expansion, as she has shown in Shanghai and in Manchuria, where so many of the excess population of her islands are now finding fertile and important natural resources. To the continued advancement of such a policy naval development, free from the established restrictions, is essential. Therefore, Tokyo, which is not the only capital in the history of modern diplomacy to regard a solemn covenant as a scrap of paper, announces that Japan will build ships in accordance with her national needs.

From this time forward, Mr. Saito, the Japanese ambassador, reveals in the polite language of diplomacy, Japan will not recognize the provisions of the existing treaty. Considerations of national dignity and prestige, he says, require the adoption of a new formula other than the ratio system. With Great Britain and the United States holding to the position that there shall not be any modifications of the established ratio, the resumption of unrestricted naval competition seems to be a possibility of the immediate future.

This is a development which throws added gloom across the international scene. It is as indicative as plainly spoken words of the determination of Japan to dominate Asia, both land and sea. Naturally, other nations with interests in the Orient, even though there is no direct conflict with those of Japan, will accept the challenge involved. Even with the horror of 16 years ago still a vivid memory, a world which has learned little from the lessons of the grim past elects to live on the brink of a volcano.

The world is wasted. The dumb won't profit by it and the smart will without it.

What a world! All one-idea men are cranks, and all great things are done by one-idea men.

The enmity of a liar doesn't matter. Nobody believes him when he tells the truth about you.

The "trim tailored effect" may be smart; but girls who use the pills that men adore are smarter.

Why blame Europe for talking war when you seldom are free of a war with your neighbors?

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXIII

In the Stuart home there was grave concern for Caroline. "They don't eat right, I know they don't," Mrs. Stuart declared in futile protest to Malcolm. "That poor woman will never be a housekeeper. It just isn't in her and I guess she can't help it, the poor thing."

"I guess you're right, Ma," Malcolm returned in a troubled voice. "I've noticed that Caroline's lunches are pretty skimpy."

"I'll put them up for her," He shook his head. "She wouldn't stand for it. But you can slip an extra goody for her into mine. Something kind of dainty. I'll say you've gone floppy on me and I don't want to hurt your feelings by telling you I can't eat the stuff."

Scheming in this way they afforded Caroline the only food she got that tempted her appetite. She had tried wheever she had a moment to spare to stir some housewife pride in her mother's bosom, but Alva hated it. Caroline bought books on food and diet for her. Alva said they bored her, and continued to feed her family badly.

Caroline was a pale wraith of a girl by the end of August. She was learning what she could at the factory, acquiring knowledge at the university, but there was no satisfaction in doing either.

She had, in sheer need of finding new interests, attempted to form a social club among the workers she had met. But the girls shied away from her. They did not dislike her, but she was not popular. Because of her difference she was strange to them. They felt self-conscious, awkward, in her presence. They knew nothing about her and it seemed queer to them that a girl could be so close-mouthed about herself. They shared their confidences, sometimes openly, talked freely of their boy friends, their "nakes," their rows, their hard luck, their good times, their parents' "buttin' in," their illnesses, anything and everything that directly concerned their lives.

Some among them tried to pump Malcolm, but he would answer them with such a ridiculous story—always different—that finally they were discouraged in their curiosity. They grew used to Caroline, ceased to wonder about her and she was left to her silence, her work, and Malcolm.

Caroline was feeling one evening when she came home that she hadn't a friend in the world aside from him. Neither, it seemed, had her mother or father. It caught her by surprise to see, when she opened the front door, that they had company.

The caller was a woman who had never before been inside Alva's house. She was one of those whom Mrs. Rutledge had refused to see. But the woman was not thinking now of how Mrs. Wade had turned her back at the door with the information that "the madam was laying down and didn't want to be bothered."

It was Alva who opened the door to her today, and invited her in. The woman had asked if she might use the telephone—not if there was one in the house, Alva had noted, and surmised that her neighbors knew more of her house and its contents than she did of theirs.

She had hesitated, uncertain whether this might be setting a precedent she should not care to have established. "I'm Mrs. Barnes," the woman had said. "We haven't got a phone, Mrs. Rutledge, and I want to call Dr. Shultz. My little girl's sick and I don't know what the matter with her."

Alva had shown her to the telephone and when the mother had put in the call she asked about the sick child. "She's got a fever, I'm afraid," Mrs. Barnes said, "she's been getting hotter all day, and her head aches. I thought she was just tired from over-doing maybe on that camping trip. She's been away for a few weeks, up at Clayford Forks. Ever since she's been home she hasn't seemed to feel like lifting her hand."

Alva remembered something she had read in the news. A report of an outbreak of typhoid in a workmen's camp near Clayford Forks where a bridge was under construction. The men had been drinking spring water, which the health authorities claimed was polluted. The heavy rains which had followed the prolonged dry spell had washed contaminated soil into the spring, they said, and warned the public against drinking from unprotected springs or streams.

Alva knew nothing of the symptoms of typhoid except that one of the earliest is lassitude, and she feared to alarm the mother by speaking of what she had read, but the thought of a typhoid epidemic in South Town was appalling. It was, she knew, a disease requiring stricter supervision of sanitary conditions than was likely to develop in the community. She decided to appeal to Dr. Shultz for his diagnosis of the child's illness.

The doctor would be there in half an hour, Mrs. Barnes said, preparing to leave. "I'll have to be going and get some fresh sheets ironed," she smiled apologetically. "Had them all in the wash today, except those on the beds, of course, and Lillie's look terrible—she's been that fretful tossing and turning."

"Oh do let me save you that trouble," Alva urged. "I have an extra supply."

She went upstairs to get the linen. Mrs. Barnes waited. Caroline arrived just as her mother came down. Introductions were short and Caroline did not learn until their neighbor was gone why her mother was giving her an armful of linen.

"It's typhoid I'm afraid," Alva said. "I'm going to telephone Dr. Shultz later. If it is typhoid we have a right to know it."

Philip came in, and heard the story. "You're jumping to conclusions," he said crossly. "Let's worry about our own affairs."

"You mean the empty case in the cellar, I suppose," Alva retorted. "Well, you can't deny that an appetizer improves a poor dinner," he answered.

Caroline left them. Their growing tendency to bicker with each other was something she could not endure.

Presently her mother called to her up the stairs and she came down, dressed in one of the simple frocks she wore to the university.

Alva watched her as she toyed with a bit of overdone steak.

"You're too thin, Caroline," she said accusingly. "Why don't you give up this . . . this ridiculous masquerade, and try to find a position you needn't be ashamed of?" Caroline answered with patient weariness. "I'm not ashamed. And it would take more energy to look for a new job than it does to do my work at the factory."

"Well, then, give up studying at night. It's ruining your health. And it's getting you nowhere."

Caroline shrugged. "Perhaps not, but it's something to do." "Look here," her father broke in, "you boasted to me once that your friends weren't all social registers. Can't you find some among them who would stoop to Edge Street for old time's sake? It would give you something to do to have a few people around."

The steady, knowing, stare with which Caroline regarded him caused him a measure of uneasiness. He understood her silent protest that parties cost money, and they had none for that purpose.

"Don't you see any of your former friends at the university?" her mother asked.

"I avoided them," Caroline said bluntly.

"Well," Alva sighed, and turned to other matters. "I wish you would run down to the store and get some ice cream for dessert."

"What—more of that cornstarch mess!" Mr. Rutledge exclaimed.

"You may have melon if you like," Alva said icily. But there was no melon, she discovered, and to put it on her shopping list.

Caroline walked to the store. It was on the next street, not far. On her way she passed the Barnes's house and stopped to inquire about their little girl. She knew the child slightly, a small, dith creature with long black curls and big black eyes, skipping her rope up and down the street early and late. Caroline had pitied her in the hot weather for the discomfort the heavy hair must cause her.

A woman Caroline did not know answered her ring. When the door was opened she could hear Mrs. Barnes crying as she talked with someone in the living room. Caroline was not going in but Mrs. Barnes called to her when she heard her voice.

"The doctor's afraid it's fever—typhoid," the woman who admitted her explained to Caroline. "He said something about a . . . a serum reaction . . . whatever that is."

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Nearly three months of production, following months of preparation and research; great symphony orchestras with musicians handpicked from all parts of the country; some of the biggest sets ever built for a talking picture; hundreds of gorgeous costumes and elaborate ballet numbers, are among the massive details that went into the filming of the world's most popular musical romance, "The Merry Widow." Ernst Lubitsch's spectacular production which is now playing at the Cliftona Theatre.

Its filming was regarded in Hollywood as one of the hugest production tasks since the inception of talking pictures. Its hundreds of people, its amazing locales, the musical and ballet ensembles, the marvelous special recording, all serve as a glamorous Continental background for the love story of Danilo and Sonia.

Friends became alarmed, thinking she was going high hat or getting just plain dizzy in the head. But Bette was just trying to make up her mind what kind of a car she wanted to replace an old one.

Seek Underlying Cause If a Victim of Insomnia

Inability to Sleep Is Due to Faulty Habits or Constitutional Disorders, Says Authority

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

MANY ATTACKS of illness would be avoided if the necessary hours of sleep and relaxation were obtained. Unfortunately, as a result of modern modes of living, high pressure competition and nerve-racking occupations, many persons are steadily deprived of adequate hours of rest. The number of sufferers from insomnia is legion, far greater than many suspect.

Insomnia, or inability to sleep, is always a menace to health and a stumbling block to long life. When the underlying cause is found and removed, insomnia is quickly overcome. But unfortunately not every case is easy to solve.

With a good many persons, insomnia has become chronic and difficult to cure, because the sufferers have failed to make honest attempts to correct certain faulty habits. Though it is well known that faulty digestion, overeating, undue excitement and fatigue, are short-cuts to insomnia, no effort is made to correct these unwise habits.

"Pills" Won't Help

Instead, the sufferer resorts to "pills" and patent medicines. These are of value in inducing sleep for a short period only, and soon the soothing effect is lost. They were never intended as a substitute for the correction of faulty habits and overcoming physical defects that lead to insomnia.

Insomnia is sometimes the result of some constitutional disorder, such as glandular disturbance, faulty circulation or trouble in the digestive tract. Just what is wrong can be determined only by a complete physical examination. Improvement in the general health and correction of faulty habits, such as hasty eating, eating at irregular hours, especially late at night, faulty elimination, lack of dental hygiene, nervous excitement and fatigue—when these are given attention soon there will be sound and restful sleep.

The importance of adequate sleep cannot be overemphasized. The body can function properly only if it is given enough hours of rest obtained through sleep.

Eight Hours Minimum

I am often asked how many hours of sleep are essential to good health. At least eight hours' sleep should be accepted as the minimum requirement. Do not be misled by the stories about certain brilliant characters who managed to get along on a quota of four to five hours of sleep. It is true that some persons keep alert on this small allowance but they are in the minority. Most persons require at least eight hours. They cannot be good natured and efficient without it.

Young and elderly persons should have even more hours of rest and relaxation. Individuals with physical defects, such as heart trouble or lung disease, require in addition to a night's sleep, rest and relaxation during the day.

Bear in mind that enough sleep is essential to your welfare. If you do not sleep it is a problem which should be solved at once.

Answers to Health Queries

Anxious. Q.—I have an attack of hives every spring. What foods should I avoid to prevent future attacks? I am inclined to be nervous and high strung.

A.—Fresh fruits and vegetables should be substituted for the richer, heavier foods. Keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mother. Q.—My children have the whooping cough. How long will it take them to recuperate? How soon may they mingle with other children? They are of school age.

A.—This depends upon the extent and seriousness of the attack. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. T. Q.—My husband is troubled with his digestion. He is very nervous and I think this affects his system in general. What foods would be best in a case of this kind?

A.—He should eat light, simple foods and should avoid nervous strain and fatigue. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

B. M. Q.—My husband has "enlarged joints on his fingers, what would you advise?"

A.—This symptom usually means that some sort of infection is present. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

as possible goes without saying. All Presidents aspire to that. But there is many a slip 'twixt cup and lip. Congress has a way of taking the bit in its teeth once it gets well under way.

The make-up of the coming body is such as to give rise to considerable doubt regarding the President's ability to hurry the members homewards by cherry blossom time. A majority in both chambers, for instance, are hot for bonus action.

The President's program excludes that entirely. But the issue will be raised and consumed much time. This is a certainty.

Likewise such controversial questions as inflation, central bank, old-age pensions, bank payoff, and labor legislation are certain to be extensively debated.

June 15 is a much safer bet for adjournment, notwithstanding the President's wishes and skill in handling Congress.

INCOME TAX MEASURE STUDIED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

MANY HOPE TO SAVE TAX PLAN

Sales Tax and Income, If It Survives, May Be Voted On Tuesday.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—The Ward income tax bill, anathema to "big business" which holds it would drive industry and wealth from Ohio, today went on the dissecting table before the state senate taxation committee.

There was ample assurance a major operation would be performed before the bill emerges from the committee bearing a recommendation for passage, if it indeed it survives the numerous incisions.

Some committee members hoped to save the bill at whatever cost, knowing that senate refusal to adopt an income tax along with a 3 per cent retail sales tax, would sink the entire emergency revenue-raising program when it returns, amended to the lower house.

OTHERS OPPOSED
Certain other members, willing and even eager to dump the state's critical financial problem into the lap of the next General Assembly convening next January, shuffled into the committee room armed with crippling amendments which they hoped would bog down the Ward bill.

If the measure should survive the tax committee operation, it may be voted on tomorrow by the full senate membership, along with the sales tax, already recommended for passage, the liquid fuel tax and the increase in utilities excise tax, if the latter two are ready by then.

No regular session of either house or senate will be held before tomorrow afternoon. At that time the house, finished with the tax program except for ratifying whatever amendments the senate writes in, may take up the commerce department's banking program or continue to twiddle its thumbs while awaiting senate action on the revenue bills.

Rates written into the income tax measure in the house are certain to be scaled down by the senate tax committee, according to its chairman, Sen. D. J. Gunsett (D) Van Wert.

The house set up rates of 2 to 6 per cent on earned income and 3 to 9 per cent on so-called unearned income, including dividends from stocks and other securities. Gunsett thought the bill would stand a better chance of being adopted if the rates were lowered to the 1 to 5 per cent brackets suggested by Gov. George White.

ACTION WITHHELD
He was hopeful that the House might see fit to pass the Gunsett-Lowery school foundation program bill approved by the senate at the special session and pending since then in the lower branch. But thus far House leaders evinced no disposition to bring to a vote any bills of such permanent character, feeling it the duty of their successors, the next assembly, to dispose of such matters.

As the "lame duck" session entered its third week there still was no sign of Gov.-elect Martin L. Davey attempting to force action by the legislature. His predecessor, in no mood to go to the mat with the assembly again after innumerable defeats on the same tax program in the past, was far from optimistic about the program's chances of adoption.

NEXT INSULL IS ON TRIAL

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Martin J. Insull, one-time multi-millionaire prince in the vast utility empire built and ruled by his brother, Samuel, faces charges of embezzling $364,720 in criminal court here today.

Martin Insull, 65, tall, austere, was extradited from Canada to stand trial. The indictments charge him with embezzling from the $400,000,000 middle west utilities corporation of which he was president, to bolster his personal brokers' accounts.

He was a defendant in the recent trial of Samuel Insull, Jr., and 16-codefendants on a federal charge of using the mails to defraud in connection with the collapse of Corporation Securities company, but was not brought to trial as he was extradited on the state indictment only. All of the defendants were acquitted in the mail fraud case.

The acquittal of his brother and the codefendants in the mail fraud case indicates to Martin Insull and his attorneys he will receive a similar verdict in the state court.

SON OF JUDGE CHARGED WITH MAN'S MURDER

Phil Kennamer, 19, Believed To Have Slain Partner In Plotting Crimes.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 3.—Phil Kennamer, 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer and confessed slayer of John F. Gorrell, Jr., 23, was to be arraigned on a murder charge here today.

Police rushed to complete their case against the youth which they said included plans of Kennamer and Gorrell to perpetrate kidnappings, extortions and holdups to obtain some "easy money."

In his confession Kennamer said he shot Gorrell, son of a wealthy Tulsa physician, in self-defense, police said.

But police openly scouted the self-defense story today, one official declaring:

"Our investigations lead us to believe the slaying resulted from a quarrel over the execution of a certain plan, conceived and discussed by two parties."

The officer, Sergt. H. B. Maddux, declined to enlarge on the statement.

Ted Bath, an aviator, told County Attorney Holly Anderson he had been approached by Kennamer and Gorrell last summer and invited to join them in banditry and at least one kidnapping.

The proposed kidnap victims, Bath said, were Virginia Wilcox, daughter of H. F. Wilcox, millionaire oilman, and Barbara Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Doyle.

Bath said the pair told him they would secure funds to finance the kidnapping by holding up a night club, "that there would be $200 in the job and that it could be used to finance a hideout."

A rumor that Kennamer killed Gorrell because the latter insisted Virginia Wilcox be made the victim of an extortion plot, was exploded by the girl's father today. He said neither he or his daughter knew of any plot against them, and that his daughter and Kennamer were only casual friends.

"I doubt if they ever had as many as two dates," he said. "They often met at parties as they were members of the same social group."

Gorrell's body, with two bullets in the head, was found in his parked auto in an exclusive residential district Thanksgiving night. In his wallet was a snapshot of Miss Doris Rogers, 21, of Pittsburg, Kas., his fiancee.

ing "that a curve was ahead," said James Cooper. "When we got to the top of a hill, I saw the road angled sharply to the right."

"I pulled the wheel but we hit a soft patch on the edge of the road and plunged into a ditch. The ditch was about seven feet deep. As the car hit the bottom, it rolled over three times."

They were rushed to White Cross hospital in an ambulance. James Cooper and Mrs. Jenkins left the hospital late yesterday while Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper rushed here to be at her husband's side.

Drs. Carl D. Hoy and Paul Bauman, his attending physicians, said the former governor probably will be laid up two or three months. He suffered a fractured vertebra in the back and shock, and it may be necessary to place his back in a cast, it was said.

COMMUNISM SCARE SEEN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—Declaring there are 1,500,000 Communists in the United States working to overthrow this country's existing social and economic structures, E. R. West, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce today had warned leaders of the nation's business against the menace.

Here to attend a two-day regional session of the United States Chamber of Commerce, West said that "the rising tide of Communism is now sweeping across the nation with an accumulated force and momentum that threatens the foundation of our social economic structure."

He said that in 1930 the number of Communists actively working and sympathizers exceeded 600,000 but today they number 1,500,000.

"It took less than 150,000 of these revolutionists to overthrow Kerensky and establish the present Soviet government of Russia," West said.

West said the Junior Chamber of Commerce has developed a four-point program to combat the red menace.

The first is the education of citizens to vote and to actively advocate and defend "our American institutions."

The second is to assist in formulating new laws aimed to curb Communistic activities.

The third is to promote the spirit of patriotism by patriotic observances.

The fourth, to "educate our youth for American ideals."

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Good and children Marion and Margaret of Watt-st spent the week-end near Horsley, Pa. visiting Mr. Good's sisters Mrs. G. W. Gowl and Mrs. A. G. Sulter and Mr. Gowl and Mr. Sulter.

SISTER OF LINDY'S WIFE PASSES AWAY

PASADENA, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Aubrey Morgan, daughter of the late Dwight Morrow, former ambassador to Mexico, died here today.

Suffering from a heart ailment, Mrs. Morgan came here a year ago from Englewood, N. J., for her health.

Three weeks ago, as she prepared to go on a yachting cruise to Mexican waters, she was stricken with an attack of appendicitis and underwent an emergency operation.

Later she contracted pneumonia and a throat infection which today resulted in death.

At her bedside were her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, and the husband.

Mrs. Morgan was a sister of Mrs. Charles Lindbergh.

TO WARD OFF FATIGUE... GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

● From London to Australia—11,323 miles—in 93 hours and 7 minutes! Even motor trouble, enforced repairs, reduced oil pressure could not stop Roscoe Turner, world-famous flyer. His courage, his indomitable energy kept him on and on. Colonel Turner, who understands well the value of a full reservoir of natural, healthy energy, says: "A speed flyer uses up energy just as his motor uses 'gas'—and smoking a Camel gives one a refill on energy. The way I notice this especially is that after smoking a Camel I get a new feeling of well-being and vim. I smoke Camels all I want. They never upset my nerves."

Munition Investigators
Fear Dupont Strategy
Might Stymie Probe

WASHINGTON—The Senate Munitions Committee, resuming its investigation today, has a much harder job on its hands than before.

Some members of the Committee are worried lest the gesture of the duPonts has spiked the show.

Senate investigations cost money. And the Committee's strategy was to build up enough public sentiment to secure further funds. This was done in a big way. But the duPonts went the committee one better. They proposed Government regulation of munitions manufacture and export.

Now, the industry can claim that since the purpose of the investigation was to secure regulation of war weapons, there is no use proceeding further. Why ruthlessly kill American trade in South America, the industry can argue.

Undoubtedly this argument will be effective with some Senate leaders.

But meanwhile public opinion continues strong for the investigation. The Committee's total mail ran into hundreds of thousands.

Ever since the first committee session, letters continue to pour in at the rate of 150 to 200 daily.

White Housekeeper

Note to housewives:
If you think you have a hard time getting the head of the family to replace the household china when it breaks up, consider the sad lot of Mrs. Henrietta Nesbit, housekeeper at the White House.

When a White House plate gets too chipped to use, she has to put it aside and send it, with an official report, to the Assistant Director of Public Buildings.

He looks it over, decides whether it should be permanently "condemned." If his verdict is "aye," he makes out official papers, orders, etc., by which the plate is finally destroyed by being broken up.

If a plate is actually broken, the pieces are sent and the same procedure obtains. The housekeeper has to account for every bit of crockery, glass, and other household furnishings in the executive mansion.

Short and Snappy

Capitol Hill is buzzing with the inside tip that the President has his mind set on a short and snappy Congressional session.

Roosevelt apparently wants Congress to wind up by May 1, at the latest, and to that end is quietly trimming his "must" legislative program to include only the following:

Appropriation measures.
New NIRA bill, necessary because the present Act expires in 1935.Public Works bill.
St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty. Taxation, banking, holding corporations, pure food and drug, and numerous other reform measures would all be shelved if he has his way.

That the President would like to get Congress off his hands as soon as possible is a fact.

POST'S PLANE CLIMBING HIGH AFTER RECORD

Winnie Mae Leaves Oklahoma Airport Trying to Break Italian's Mark

USES FAMED PLANE

Flyer Wearing Steel "strato-jacket"

PHILLIPS AIRPORT, Bartlesville, Okla., Dec. 3.—The globe circling airplane Winnie Mae with its famous round the world pilot Wiley Post at the controls roared down the runways here at 8:09 a. m. and off into space in an attempt to ascend 50,000 feet into the stratosphere.

A crowd of less than 300 persons braved a clear cold day to witness the takeoff of the white stream-lined cabin ship which hurtled Post into aviation's hall of fame when he skimmed the craft around the earth in the record time of 7 days, 18 hours and 56 minutes.

AFTER RECORD

The flight into the upper regions, which had been delayed by bad weather, is an official attempt to break the record of 47,352 feet established by Lieut. Renato Donati of Italy.

"This is not a stunt flight," Post insisted before the takeoff. "It is an official attempt to break the record and also to prove that a stock model plane can fly in the stratosphere."

The plane has a gasoline capacity sufficient for a three and a half hours flight, but Post said he did not expect to remain up longer than two hours.

A barograph in the ship will make an official recording of the plane's climb and will be turned over to the department of commerce for checking to ascertain whether a new record was established.

The plane and pilot are specially equipped to withstand the rarified air of the stratosphere.

WEARS JACKET
Post wore a special inflated "strato-jacket" of steel and rubber with a hose attached to the hood through which the pilot will breathe oxygen.

A "super-charger" will cause the rarified air to have the same action on the motor as air at lower altitudes.

MRS. MINNIE LUTZ IS TAKEN AT 59

Mrs. Minnie Mae Lutz, 59, widow of John L. Lutz and a resident of the Kingston vicinity the greater part of her life, passed away Sunday at 2:15 a. m. in Lancaster hospital where she underwent an operation Saturday.

Mrs. Lutz had been living in Amanda.

She survived by a son, Denver and two daughters, Mrs. Lulu Miller and Mrs. Edna Drum, seven grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. W. S. Jones of Griffin, Ga.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the Amanda M. E. church with Revs. Shaver and Donnelly in charge and burial in Whistler cemetery by H. E. Deffenbaugh and Sons.

C. Grant, and $1 credit on a heating pad by the Southern Ohio Electric Co.

BROTHER'S MACHINE COSTS AUTO DRIVER 2 FINES AND COSTS

Sanford Lee of Columbus was giving his brother "check" today after he (Sanford) was arrested for two violations of motor vehicle laws.

Picked up by highway patrolmen he was charged in Square H. O. Eveland's court with driving an automobile carrying "Christmas tree" headlights, one red and one green. That charge cost him $10 and costs. While his hearing was being conducted the patrolmen checked on the license plates and found they were fictitious, that cost him $25 and costs.

Lee told Eveland he didn't know the headlights were two-colored and thought his brother's license plates were all right since he was driving his kin's machine.

2 FINED FOR VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS

Reigel and Leonard Each Taxed $500. Given 30 Days in Jail by Adkins

STATE MEN IN RAIDS

Other News of Police Court Activities

Two Pickaway-co men faced terms in the county jail today after they entered pleas of guilty Saturday afternoon before Judge Joseph W. Adkins on liquor charges filed by state agents.

They were Orren Reigel, 52, of Ashville and Charles Leonard, 40, of Scioto-twp, one mile west of South Bloomfield.

They were arrested following raids by the state men and Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer. Three gallons of illegal whiskey were found at Leonard's while three-quarters of a gallon was confiscated at Reigel's.

Charges of possession and selling were placed against both men and fines of $250 and costs on each of the two charges were assessed against both. Judge Adkins also sentenced both men to the county jail for 30 days.

Reigel provided bond of $1,000 signed by Roy Wallis, this city, to appear Wednesday with the money to pay his fine. If he appears in court without the money he will have to serve it in jail in addition to the 30 days which must be served regardless of whether he pays the fine. Leonard went to jail immediately unable to pay his fine.

Reigel was represented by E. L. Crist while Leonard had no attorney.

YOUTH PAROLED

Joseph Reichelderfer, of South Bloomfield, was placed on a two year parole by Judge Adkins Saturday after he pleaded guilty to two counts of forgery.

COON EXONERATED

John Coon of this city was released by police Saturday after he had been held for investigation. Coon was given a clean slate by police.

Rehearsals Start For Show Planned By Royal Neighbors

Rehearsals were to start this evening for the musical comedy "Crashing Thru" sponsored by the Royal Neighbors at the Grand Theatre Dec. 12 and 13.

Miss Ann Wilson of the National Producing Co., Kansas City, has been in the city several days selecting a cast and preparing for rehearsals. All practices are being held in the Modern Woodman hall.

GIRL ASLEEP FOR 33 MONTHS GAINING

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Joy reigned in the home Chicago's sleeping beauty today.

For pretty 29-year-old Patricia Maguire is slowly awakening from her two-year sleep.

Each day she is arousing a bit more from the sleeping sickness which has held her in a deep coma since Feb. 24, 1932.

The elation of her mother, Mrs. Peter Miley, is unbounded today because Patricia raised her head unaided, a movement stymied by physicians to be extremely difficult for victims of her illness.

EX-GOVERNOR RESTING WELL

Myers Y. Cooper Has Fractured Vertebra; To Remain in Hospital Long Time.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—The condition of former Governor Myers Y. Cooper, who was seriously injured when an automobile in which he was riding left the road four miles west of Urica in Licking-co and rolled over three times in a ditch was reported as "improved and fairly good" by White Cross hospital officials today.

Three other members of the Cooper family also were hurt but only his sister, Mrs. Angie Bowlers, 73, remained in the hospital. Her condition was reported as only "fair."

Another sister, Mrs. Ella Jenkins, 65, and a brother, James G. Cooper, 68, had escaped with less serious injuries.

The Coopers were enroute to Centerburg in Knox-co to attend the funeral of a cousin, Mrs. Lizzie Bishop, when their car left the road. They were pinned in it for 15 minutes before passing motorists noticed the overturned car released them.

According to James Cooper, the party left their Hyde Park, Cincinnati, home early yesterday and the ex-governor drove as far as Columbus when James took the wheel. Driving on the Johnstown Road, the former governor's brother failed to notice a curve and the car left the road and rolled over three times.

"I didn't notice any signs warning of the curve," he said.

Youthful 'Phenom' Located at College

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—One of the most remarkable young minds in the world, possessed by a child of six, has been found by the College of the City of New York.

He is known only as "K," because college authorities fear his career might be wrecked should his identity become known.

The lad first aroused interest when he began talking fluently at a year and a half.

When he was 20 months old he knew his alphabet by heart.

He used such words as "encyclopedia," "Evolution," and "luminosity" at six.

His intelligence "quotient" now is 190.

And that, according to Professor Samuel E. Heckman, of the college's educational clinic, is attained by "one child in a million."

Hunt Nelson's Wife

Directing the hunt for the companion of "Baby Face" Nelson in the battle at Barrington, Ill., in which Federal Agents Samuel P. Crowley and Herman E. Hollis traded their lives for that of the notorious desperado, Hugh H. Clegg, above department of justice agent, also is seeking Helen Gillis, wife of "Baby Face," as the nation's first woman "public enemy."

John Hamilton was believed "Baby Face's" aide in the Barrington gun battle.

Slain Red Official

One of Soviet Russia's leading officials, Sergei Mironovich Kirov, above, 48-year-old member of the Communist party's political bureau, was assassinated in Leningrad. Police captured the killer who had seemingly passed unhindered into the well-guarded building where the bureau has its headquarters. A revolution on a y most of his life, Kirov, had been frequently mentioned as a possible successor to Joseph Stalin, dictator of the U. S. S. R.

FREIGHT HITS RUTTER AUTO

Mrs. Rutter Suffers Fractured Skull and Other Injuries Saturday Evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rutter, 54, wife of Mose Rutter of E. Town-st, was a patient in Berger hospital Monday suffering from a fractured skull, badly lacerated scalp and left knee and a possibly sprained back as a result of a collision between the automobile driven by her husband and a switching Pennsylvania freight train Saturday at 6:30 p. m.

Mr. Rutter was not badly hurt. His wife, however, remains serious. Her physician is Dr. E. R. Austin.

The Rutters were crossing the Pennsylvania tracks at Washington-st when struck. The train of four cars was being backed from the new tracks near the Eshelman Milling Co.

Mrs. Rutter was taken to Berger hospital in the Albaugh ambulance.

The train No. 2B-14 was operated by Engineer Shipley and Conductor Barneaut both of Lancaster.

Two other persons suffering fractured skulls are patients in the hospital. They are William Whitehead and Clarence Logsdon.

CYNTHIA BAER, 60, DIES IN COLUMBUS

Miss Cynthia Baer, aged 60, daughter of the late Mark Baer who was chief of the Circleville fire department for many years, succumbed to a heart attack Saturday at 9 p. m. at her home, 35 Guildford-st, Columbus, where she had resided for two years with her sister, Mrs. Cora Gregg.

Miss Baer was a native of Jackson-twp.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Mader & Ebert chapel with Rev. H. A. Sayre officiating. The body has been removed to friends' home.

Miss Baer was the daughter of James Marquis Baer and Rosa Buckler. She is survived by a brother Walter Baer of Columbus and the sister with whom she made her home.

She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

ALL COUNTIES IN AREA HAVE GROUPS THERE

Judge Adkins Among Barristers Hearing Testimony for Control Plan

COURTROOM FILLED

Judge Duncan of Franklin-co Presiding

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—With sponsors of the proposed $30,000,000 project predicting approval, a court of 17 common pleas judges met here today to hear arguments on behalf of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy association for a system of 39 dams in the Scioto and Sandusky river valleys in Ohio.

Judges from every one of the 17 counties affected were present as the hearing opened in a packed courtroom. Judge Robert P. Duncan, of Franklin-co, presided and the other 16 judges were grouped about two large tables.

Among the latter were Judges Joseph W. Adkins, of Pickaway-co, H. W. Jewell of Delaware-co, Wilbur McKenzie of Ross-co, T. Bell of Madison-co, Phil W. and of Morrow-co, C. A. Ahl of Crawford-co, H. S. Young of Marion-co, Ralph Sprague of Wapakoneta-co, Russell H. Keen of Wyandot-co, and A. V. Bauman of Sandusky-co.

OTHER OFFICIALS, TOO
Many county prosecutors and solicitors from cities in the valley were also present.

"I believe the district will be approved," Mr. Albert Smith, secretary of the conservancy association, declared as he entered the courtroom. David H. Warner, secretary of the Ohio Water conservancy board, also said he anticipated approval.

Sanction of the plan by the court would officially create the conservancy district and allow it to go ahead with plans to solicit financial support from the government, the state and local subdivisions.

Approximately 4,000 landowners in the affected area, the court will be told by Smith, he said, have signed petitions asking approval of the gigantic work. Modeled after the Muskingum valley conservancy district, it will cost work for 8,000 persons for four years once it actually starts. However, beginning of construction may not start for months or one or two years, it was said.

CONNECT STREAMS

One phase of the project would connect streams that flow into the Lake Erie and the Ohio river. However, the canal would not be navigable and could not be used for shipping.

Allen L. Pretzman, attorney for the conservancy district, was the first witness before the court. He reviewed the conservancy district law in Ohio and cited the work done under it in the Miami and Muskingum valleys.

Al P. Zinn, attorney for the Muskingum conservancy district, also was present at the hearing and was expected to tell the court how the Muskingum plans had worked out satisfactorily.

Delegations from several cities made pleas for the district citing examples of much damage caused by flood waters because of no control. Portsmouth was making its plea as the noon recess was called.

Pretzman told the court that if sanction is voted the matter could be carried to Washington for inclusion in the January budget.

PLANT PICKETED

BUYRUS, Dec. 3.—A flying-squad of 100 union pickets from Cleveland today besieged the local plant of the Kayene manufacturing company here in an attempt to spread their strike from the Cleveland plant to the Buyrus factory of the firm.

Local police said they were unable to handle the situation as the city has only four patrolmen on the day shift.

The pickets, shouting and screaming and in what Police Chief Philip Trautman said was an "ugly mood," surrounded the local plant in an attempt to keep the workers from reporting for duty this morning.

EDWARDS SENTENCED

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

HOW ABOUT LEAGUE?

How about an independent basketball league in the city with games to be played at the Circleville Athletic Club? Nearly every day someone asks if there is going to be a league and our answer frankly is "Don't know."

SOMEONE STEPS UP

Since the high school is to play its home games in the C. A. C. gym it is believed the club officials would permit a league to be contested there also if the proper persons are in charge of its organization and conduct. The club officials, and we're with them on that question, would not and should not lease the big building to irresponsible persons. It is understood a number of teams could be obtained with backers ready to go into the league but someone had better step forward soon to organize the loop or it will be too late.

MYERS ON ALL-STAR

One Columbus Red Bird athlete, if you are interested in baseball at this time of the year, made the Sporting News' all-Association team. That is Billy Myers, short stop. The other positions went: Pitchers, Tauscher of Minneapolis and Braxton of Milwaukee who won 41 games between them; catcher, Hargrave of Minneapolis; outfield, Washington of Indianapolis, Wright of Minneapolis and Knappa of Kansas City; first base, Davis of Toledo; second base, Storti of Milwaukee; third base, Bedore of Indianapolis.

WEAT OF MORGAN?

Since the sale of First Baseman Captain Mickey Heath by the Red Birds it is possible Eddie Morgan, former Cleveland-Boston first baseman, will be in the Bird harness. Morgan has been sold by Boston to Rochester and that may be just a stop on the way to Columbus. We doubt, however, if Morgan comes because he detests minor league baseball except in his home town of New Orleans.

FOUR CONSIDERED FOR SOUTHERN TILT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 3.—The football teams which will meet in the "Sugar Bowl" game here New Year's day, will be announced tonight.

It was assumed at least one of the teams to be invited to compete had already been chosen, and the committee was awaiting an answer to their invitation.

It was learned Tulane and Rice are the only southern teams being considered, while the eastern opponent will be chosen from Columbia, Colgate, Temple and Pittsburgh.

OHIO SCHOOLS AT WORK FOR CAGE SEASON

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.—As the regularly scheduled football games for 1934 passed into the limbo of record books, hundreds of college athletes and more than 20,000 high school youths turned their attention to serious basketball practice today.

Ohio State University's regular cagers, augmented by recruits from the football squad, held their first practice Saturday and this week will go into daily sessions under the direction of Coach Harold Olsen.

Among other schools whose athletes turned from the gridiron to the gymnasium was Hiram College, handicapped this year by the lack of a place to practice as the result of a fire which razed the school's combination gym and administration building. Hiram cagers will practice and play in high school gyms, holding most of their games at Warren.

NUMBER INCREASES

In contrast to the 423 high school football teams in the state, approximately 3,100 basketball teams were registered in the office of H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association.

Hundreds of schools, unable to support football squads, have already taken up basketball, Townsend said. Some of the teams, with schedules calling for 25 games, began playing as early as September. Larger schools, playing 10 and 12-game schedules, will start their games this month.

All basketball teams, according to an athletic association ruling, must disband cage teams on March 21, when the state tournament, to be played at Columbus, will get under way. Until that time, however, approximately 1,000 basketball games will be played every week throughout the state.

HONOR MONAHAN AND DICK HECKIN

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3.—The all Big Ten team selected by the Central Press association includes the following:

Ends, Larson and Tenner of Minnesota; tackles, Austin of Michigan and Foster of Iowa; guards, Monahan of Ohio State and Bevan of Minnesota; center, Patterson of Chicago; quarterback, Purvis of Purdue; halfbacks, Heckin of Ohio State and Kostka of Minnesota; fullback, Lund of Minnesota.

The color of a South American Indian tribe is brought to the United States by "Indian" Quintana, above, new bantamweight contender. Quintana is being signed for several fights in New York.

BEARS READY FOR NEW YORK

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The Bears were preparing to leave for New York today to meet Knute Strong's Giants for the world's professional football championship after turning back the Detroit Lions the second time in a week. Sunday. The score was 10-7 with big Jack Manders' toe again doing the necessary damage.

Nearly 35,000 fans saw the hotly contested game.

The Bears confined their scoring to the first half when Nagurski scored. Manders booted the placement and later contributed a field goal. The Detroit scoring was done by Glenn Presnell, Nebraska star, who sprinted 33 yards for the goal line on a fake pass play then converted by placement.

Thanksgiving day the Bears defeated Detroit 19-16 in the most thrilling fray of the year.

GIANTS BEATEN

The Giants using all their subs in an effort to prevent injury to their stars were defeated 6-0 by the hapless Philadelphia Eagles. Jim Leonard formerly of Notre Dame was the Philadelphia star.

Other pro league scores were Green Bay, 21; St. Louis, 14; Boston, 13; Brooklyn, 3.

The final game on the schedule is that next Sunday when the Bears and Giants angle at the Polo ground.

WALSH NAMES WENDT ON HIS ALL-AMERICAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Merle Wendt, Ohio State sophomore end, was selected for a first team berth on the All-America football team announced today by Davis J. Walsh, sports editor of International News Service.

Wendt was selected over Larson of Minnesota and Mosier of Stanford with Huston of Alabama the other choice for the first string.

Regis Monahan, Ohio State captain and guard, was placed at a tackle berth on the second team. Ohio players receiving honorable mention were Hamrick at tackle, Jones at center, and Heekin at halfback.

GUARDS FROM PIT

The remainder of the INS editor's first team includes: Tackles, Reynolds of Stanford and Widseth of Minnesota; guards, Hartwig and Ormiston of Pitt; center, Lester of Texas Christian; quarterback, Williams of California; halfbacks, Howell of Alabama and Lund of Minnesota, and fullback, Grayson of Stanford.

The second team in addition to Monahan includes: Ends, Mosier of Stanford and Larson of Minnesota; tackle, Burk as of Louisiana State; guards, Bevan of Minnesota and Barclay of North Carolina; center, Patterson of Chicago; quarterback, Hilliard of Texas; halfbacks, Berwanger of Chicago and Purvis of Purdue, and fullback, Weinstock of Pitt.

Walsh explained that he picked Wendt over Larson because "Larson, while considered a great defensive end, was a shade weak on offense."

Geographically, the best placed two, Midwest three, southwest one, coast three and south two.

COUNTY TO OPEN

Pickaway county teams will open their regular scheduled this week. The list, of the week's games will be announced Tuesday.

HOW to DANCE

"The Continental"

In 8 Easy Lessons

The Second Movement

SATURDAY we completed the FIRST MOVEMENT of that new ballroom sensation, "THE CONTINENTAL," which makes available for the first time to the general public, the joy of doing interpretive dancing.

Yesterday's movement, or introduction, launched the story of courtship as worked out in the new dance demonstrated by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee."

This SECOND MOVEMENT, to Fox Trot or 4-4 time, as in the whole dance, is accomplished in six bars of the music, or twenty-four counts. The movement provides a choice for the couple, who can either do a regular whirl to Fox Trot rhythm, as in the above photo; or do a regular Fox Trot walk, four counts backward, four counts forward again and four counts back.

In this movement of "THE CONTINENTAL" the girl is supposed to gaze at her partner throughout every other bar of the music, as though studying his possibilities as a prospective suitor. In the other three bars she hides her face against his shoulder, as if pondering the information she has gained.

(Tomorrow—The Third Movement)

"THE GAY DIVORCEE" COMING TO THE CLIFTONA THEATRE, SUN., MON., TUES, DEC. 9, 10, 11.

This Neckwear will Dress Up Any Frock

PATTERN 5231

This year, the crocheter is the fortunate person for her Christmas list can be solved so satisfactorily. With everyone longing to wear some sort of crocheted accessories, a gift of this handiwork will meet with loud approval. Any of this neckwear would delight the woman who aims to be well-dressed. The pointed collar is enhanced with metal threads drawn through after the choker is done—of course, you can use a color in place of this if you wish. The bow—it's very perky and lacy—will give an alluring touch to a simple frock. It, too, can have a bit of metallic thread or color. The tab collar—the tab is real lacy while the rest is done in a more solid crochet—is soft and lovely in angora. With these three pieces of neckwear, you can have three distinctly different gifts that will delight any feminine heart. And if you're not set on making them as gifts, smarten your own frocks with them—you'll be surprised at what they will do to them!

In pattern 5231 you will find detailed illustrations for making the neckwear shown; material requirements; illustrations of the neckwear and of all stitches used. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, O.

Unique Vicks Formula Is Now Aiding Millions In Preventing Many Colds

Vicks Va-tro-nol, the unique aid in preventing colds, is now helping millions of adults and children to enjoy greater freedom from colds. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for nose and throat, where most colds start. Va-tro-nol should be used at that first sneeze or nasal irritation—just a few drops up each nostril. Its timely use helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off colds in the early stages.

Va-tro-nol is powerful yet absolutely safe—for both children and adults. It has been clinically tested by physicians—and proved in every-day home use by millions.

(Note: The remarkable success of Vicks Drops—for nose and throat—has brought scores of imitations. The trademark Va-tro-nol is your protection in getting this exclusive Vicks formula. Always ask for Vicks Va-tro-nol. Now in two generous sizes—30c and 50c.)

Va-tro-nol and its companion product, Vicks VapoRub (the modern external treatment for colds) form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—fully explained in each Vicks package.

PATTERN 9208

This is a particularly nicely tailored edition of the Swing-Back design—a design, which, as you probably know, has taken the fashion world by storm this season, because of its chic versatility.

Wear the over-blouse swinging jauntily free at the back—or belt it all the way round to make a classic and smart two-piece outfit. Don't you like those gracefully full sleeves ending as they do, in trim, turned-back cuffs? And the slit pockets beneath the belt are smart and swagger. The slenderizing front panel of the skirt breaks into two inverted pleats below the knee to give plenty of walking freedom for brisk winter jaunts. Stunning in silk or wool!

Pattern 9208 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 54 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Do not miss our WINTER PATTERN BOOK of smart, easy-to-make clothes designed by our style authority, MARIAN MARTIN. Styles for every age and all occasions. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

It is an appropriate time to bring up the vital subject of Christmas shopping, a pleasant responsibility which must be fulfilled within the next three weeks if all is to go happily when the day finally arrives.

There is unlimited experience to prove that early Christmas shopping is the course of wisdom. It is attended by practical benefits, as stocks that have not been reduced by the onslaughts of the holiday shoppers that appears later in the season. In addition, early, discriminating purchasing is possible and when the necessary tasks have been accomplished early the approach of the holiday is anticipated with a mind free from the anxieties that invariably delayed shopping.

Circleville's stores are now prepared for invasion. They offer all the advantages to be found in metropolitan centers, with the additional attractions of convenience and economy. There is no sound in going elsewhere.

A nationwide survey conducted recently by the National Retail Goods Association indicated that there is in prospect the largest Christmas trade since 1931, with sales showing an increase of 11 per cent over 1933 and 21.5 per cent over 1932.

If this expectation is realized an important step toward economic recovery will be accomplished. Circleville shoppers will serve their interests by giving their share of stimulus to the forward movement.

JAP MENACE GROWS

THERE is a definite element of consistency in the decision of Japan to denounce the Washington treaty establishing principle of national limitation. Japan is absolutely committed to a policy of national expansion, as she has shown in Shanghai and in Manchuria, where so much of the excess population of her islands are now finding fertile and important natural resources. To the continued advancement of such a policy naval development, free from the established restrictions, is essential. Therefore, Tokyo, which is not the only capital in the history of modern diplomacy to regard a solemn covenant as a scrap of paper, announces that Japan will build ships in accordance with her national needs.

From this time forward, Mr. Saito, the Japanese ambassador, reveals in the polite language of diplomacy, Japan will not recognize the provisions of the existing treaty. Considerations of national dignity and prestige, he says, require the adoption of a new formula other than the ratio system. With Great Britain and the United States holding to the position that there shall not be any modifications of the established ratio, the resumption of unrestricted naval competition seems to be a possibility of the immediate future.

This is a development which throws added gloom across the international scene. It is as indicative as plainly spoken words of the determination of Japan to dominate Asia, both land and sea. Naturally, other nations with interests in the Orient, even though there is no direct conflict with those of Japan, will accept the challenge involved.

Even with the horror of 16 years ago still a vivid memory, a world which has learned little from the lessons of the grim past elects to live on the brink of a volcano.

CAROLINE

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXIII

In the Stuart home there was grave concern for Caroline. "They don't eat right, I know they don't," Mrs. Stuart declared in futile protest to Malcolm. "That poor woman will never be a housekeeper. It just isn't in her and I guess she can't help it, the poor thing."

"I guess you're right, Ma," Malcolm returned in a troubled voice. "I've noticed that Caroline's lunches are pretty skimpy."

"I'll put them up for her," He shook his head. "She wouldn't stand for it. But you can slip an extra goodly for her into mine. Something kind of dainty. I'll say you've gone flossy on me and I don't want to hurt your feelings by telling you I can't eat the stuff."

Scheming in this way they afforded Caroline the only food she got that tempted her appetite. She had tried whatever she had a moment to spare to stir some housewife pride in her mother's bosom, but Alva hated it. Caroline bought books on food and diet for her. Alva said they bored her, and continued to feed her family badly.

Caroline was a pale wraith of a girl by the end of August. She was learning what she could at the factory, acquiring knowledge at the university, but there was no satisfaction in doing either.

She had, in sheer need of finding new interests, attempted to form a social club among the workers she had met. But the girls shied away from her. They did not dislike her, but she was not popular. Because of her difference she was strange to them. They felt self-conscious, awkward, in her presence. They knew nothing about her and it seemed queer to them that a girl could be so close-mouthed about herself. They shared their confidences, sometimes openly, talked freely of their boy friends, their "makes," their rows, their hard luck, their good times, their parents' "buttin' in," their illnesses, anything and everything that directly concerned their lives.

Some among them tried to pump Malcolm, but he would answer them with such a ridiculous story—always different—that finally they were discouraged in their curiosity. They grew used to Caroline. They were left to her silence, her work, and Malcolm.

Caroline was feeling one evening when she came home that she hadn't a friend in the world aside from him. Neither, it seemed, had her mother or father. It caught her by surprise to see, when she opened the front door, that they had company.

The caller was a woman who had never before been inside Alva's house. She was one of those whom Mrs. Rutledge had refused to see. But the woman was not thinking now of how Mrs. Wade had turned her back at the door with the information that "the madam was laying down and didn't want to be bothered."

Alva who opened the door to her today, and invited her in. The woman had asked if she might use the telephone—not if there was one in the house. Alva had noted, and surmised that her neighbors knew more of her house and its contents than she did of theirs.

She had hesitated, uncertain whether this might be setting a precedent she should not care to have established. "I'm Mrs. Barnes," the woman had said. "We haven't got a phone. Mrs. Rutledge, and I want to call Dr. Shultz. My little girl's sick and I don't know what's the matter with her."

Alva had shown her to the telephone and when the mother had put in the call she asked about the sick child. "She's got a fever, I'm afraid," Mrs. Barnes said, "she's been getting hotter all day, and her head aches. I thought she was just tired from over-doing maybe on that camping trip. She's been away for a few weeks, up at Clayford Forks. Ever since she's been home she hasn't seemed to feel like lifting her hand."

Alva remembered something she had read in the news. A report of an outbreak of typhoid in a workmen's camp near Clayford Forks where a bridge was under construction. The men had been drinking spring water, which the health authorities claimed was polluted. The heavy rains which had followed the prolonged dry spell had washed contaminated soil into the spring, they said, and warned the public against drinking from unprotected springs or streams.

Alva knew nothing of the symptoms of typhoid except that one of the earliest is lassitude, and she feared to alarm the mother by speaking of what she had read, but the thought of a typhoid epidemic in South Town was appalling. It was, she knew, a disease requiring stricter supervision of sanitary conditions than was likely to develop in the community. She decided to appeal to Dr. Shultz for his diagnosis of the child's illness.

The doctor would be there in half an hour, Mrs. Barnes said, preparing to leave. "I'll have to be going," she smiled apologetically. "Had them all in the wash today, except those on the beds, of course, and Lillie's look terrible—she's been that fretful, tossing and turning."

"Oh do let me save you that trouble," Alva urged. "I have an extra supply."

She went upstairs to get the linen. Mrs. Barnes waited. Caroline arrived just as her mother came down. Introductions were short and Caroline did not learn until their neighbor was gone why her mother was giving her an armful of linen.

"It's typhoid I'm afraid," Alva said. "I'm going to telephone Dr. Shultz later. If it is typhoid we have a right to know it."

Philip came in, and heard the story. "You're jumping to conclusions," he said crossly. "Let's worry about our own affairs."

"You mean the empty case in the cellar, I suppose," Alva retorted. "Well, you can't deny that an appetizer improves a poor dinner," he answered.

Caroline left them. Their growing tendency to bicker with each other was something she could not endure.

Presently her mother called to her up the stairs, and she came down, dressed in one of the simple frocks she wore to the university.

Alva watched her as she toyed with a bit of overdone steak. "You're too thin, Caroline," she said accusingly. "Why don't you give up this . . . this ridiculous masquerade, and try to find a position you needn't be ashamed of?" Caroline answered with patient weariness. "I'm not ashamed. And it would take more energy to look for a new job than it does to do my work at the factory."

"Well, then, give up studying at night. It's ruining your health. And it's getting you nowhere."

Caroline shrugged. "Perhaps not, but it's something to do." "Look here," her father broke in, "you boasted to me once that your friends weren't all social registers. Can't you find some among them who would stoop to Edge Street for old time's sake? It would give you something to do to have a few people around."

The steady, knowing, stare with which Caroline regarded him caused him a measure of uneasiness. He understood her silent protest that parties cost money, and they had none for that purpose.

The girls shied away from Caroline. They did not dislike her but she was not popular.

"Don't you see any of your former friends at the university?" her mother asked.

"I avoid them," Caroline said bluntly. "Well," Alva sighed, and turned to other matters. "I wish you would run down to the store and get some ice cream for dessert."

"What—more of that cornstarch mess?" Mr. Rutledge exclaimed. "You may have melon if you like," Alva said icily. But there was no melon, she discovered, and remembered that she had forgotten to put it on her shopping list.

Caroline walked to the store. It was on the next street, not far. On her way she passed the Barnes' house and stopped to inquire about their little girl. She knew the child slightly, a small, elfin creature with long black curls and big black eyes, skipping her rope up and down the street early and late. Caroline had pitied her in the hot weather for the discomfort the heavy hair must cause her.

A woman Caroline did not know answered her ring. When the door was opened she could hear Mrs. Barnes crying as she talked with someone in the living room. Caroline was not going in but Mrs. Barnes called to her when she heard her voice.

"The doctor's afraid it's fever-typhoid," the woman who admitted her explained to Caroline. "He said something about a . . . a serum reaction . . . whatever that is."

THE MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Nearly three months of production, following months of preparation and research; great symphony orchestra with musicians handpicked from all parts of the country; some of the biggest sets ever built for a talking picture; hundreds of gorgeous costumes and elaborate ballet numbers, are among the massive details that went into the filming of the world's most popular musical romance, "The Merry Widow." Ernst Lubitsch's spectacular production which is now playing at the Cliftona Theatre.

Its filming was regarded in Hollywood as one of the hugest production tasks since the inception of talking pictures. Its hundreds of people, its amazing locales, the musical and ballet ensembles, the marvelous special recording, all serve as a glamorous Continental background for the love story of Danilo and Sonia.

Friends of Bette Davis, the blonde star who has the role of a leader of a band of international bond swindlers in "Fog Over Frisco," the First National picture now showing at the Grand Theatre, rode to work in a different car, driven by a uniformed chauffeur, every day for two weeks during the production of the picture. Friends became alarmed, thinking she was going high hat or getting just plain dizzy in the head. But Bette was just trying to make up her mind what kind of a car she wanted to replace an old one.

Seek Underlying Cause If a Victim of Insomnia

Inability to Sleep Is Due to Faulty Habits or Constitutional Disorders, Says Authority

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

MANY ATTACKS of illness would be avoided if the necessary hours of sleep and relaxation were obtained. Unfortunately, as a result of modern modes of living, high pressure competition and nerve-racking occupations many persons are steadily deprived of adequate hours of rest. The number of sufferers from insomnia is legion, far greater than many suspect.

Insomnia, or inability to sleep, is always a menace to health and a stumbling block to long life. When the underlying cause is found and removed, insomnia is quickly overcome. But unfortunately not every case is easy to solve.

With a good many persons, insomnia has become chronic and difficult to cure, because the sufferers have failed to make honest attempts to correct certain faulty habits. Though it is well known that faulty digestion, overeating, undue excitement and fatigue are short-cuts to insomnia no effort is made to correct these unwise habits.

"Pills" Won't Help

Instead, the sufferer resorts to "pills" and patent medicines. These are of value in inducing sleep for a short period only, and soon the soothing effect is lost. They were never intended as a substitute for the correction of faulty habits and overcoming physical defects that lead to insomnia.

Insomnia is sometimes the result of some constitutional disorder, such as glandular disturbance, faulty circulation or trouble in the digestive tract. Just what is wrong can be determined only by a complete physical examination. Improvement in the general health and correction of faulty habits, such as hasty eating, late at night, faulty elimination, lack of dental hygiene, nervous excitement and fatigue—when these are given attention soon there will be sound and restful sleep.

The importance of adequate sleep cannot be overemphasized. The body can function properly only if it is given enough hours of rest obtained through sleep.

Eight Hours Minimum

I am often asked how many hours of sleep are essential to good health. At least eight hours' sleep should be accepted as the minimum requirement. Do not be misled by the stories about certain brilliant characters who managed to get along on a quota of four to five hours of sleep. It is true that some persons keep alert on this small allowance, but they are in the minority. Most persons require at least eight hours. They cannot be good natured and efficient without it.

Young and elderly persons should have even more hours of rest and relaxation. Individuals with physical defects, such as heart trouble or lung disease, require in addition to a night's sleep, rest and relaxation during the day.

Bear in mind that enough sleep is essential to your welfare. If you do not sleep it is a problem which should be solved at once.

Answers to Health Queries

Anxious. Q.—I have an attack of nerves every spring. What foods should I avoid to prevent future attacks? I am inclined to be nervous and high strung.

A.—Fresh fruits and vegetables should be substituted for the richer, heavier foods. Keep the system clear. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mother. Q.—My children have the whooping cough. How long will it take them to recuperate? How soon may they mingle with other children? They are of school age.

A.—This depends upon the extent and seriousness of the attack. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. T. Q.—My husband is troubled with his digestion. He is very nervous and I think this affects his system in general. What foods would be best in a case of this kind?

A.—He should eat light, simple foods and should avoid nervous strain and fatigue. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

B. M. Q.—My husband has enlarged joints on his fingers, what would you advise?

A.—This symptom usually means that some sort of infection is present. For full particulars resubmit your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

as possible goes without saying. All Presidents aspire to that. But there is many a slip 'twixt cup and lip. Congress has a way of taking the bit in its teeth once it gets well under way.

The make-up of the coming body is such as to give rise to considerable doubt regarding the President's ability to hurry the members homewards by cherry blossom time. A majority in both chambers, for instance, are hot for bonus action.

The President's program excludes that entirely. But the issue will be raised and consumed much time. This is a certainty.

Likewise such controversial questions as inflation, central bank, old-age pensions, bank payoff, and labor legislation are certain to be extensively debated.

June 15 is a much safer bet for adjournment, notwithstanding the President's wishes and skill in handling Congress.

AGAIN—too sick to work—another veil—excuse is necessary. Pain is unnatural—why be a "periodical sufferer?" VATONA is the one-purpose corrective prescribed by physicians. VATONA acts quickly—is non-habit-forming and does not leave "brain-dullness." Women who use VATONA regularly have taken the "bad days" off their calendar.

● From London to Australia—11,323 miles—in 95 hours and 7 minutes! Even motor trouble, extended repairs, reduced oil pressure could not stop Roscoe Turner, world-famous flyer. His courageous indomitable energy kept him on and on. Colonel Turner, who understands well the value of a full reservoir of natural, healthy energy, says: "A speed flyer uses up energy just as his motor uses 'gas'—and smoking a Camel gives one a 'refill' on energy. The way I notice this especially is that after smoking a Camel I get a new feeling of well-being and vim. I smoke Camels all I want. They never upset my nerves."

LEAF-TOBACCO
